THE ORIGINAL ROCKY MOUNTAIN RANGERS

Captain Stewart's Cowboy Cavalry, from a sketch by Mr. J. D. White (Canadian Pictorial and Illustrated War News, 1885).

ROCKY MOUNTAIN RANGERS

Historical

THE ROCKY MOUNTAIN RANGERS will celebrate their fifty-sixth birthday on March 28, 1941. Since the year Eighteen Hundred Eighty-Five, under the same name and with the same traditions of loyal sacrifice, the regiment has carried on. Now for the third time, it has been mobilised for active service. In this booklet, which contains a record of the unit at its Second Great War strength, it is fitting that we set down a few details of the original organization.

Conditions during the early days in the West, details of the formation and activities of these first Rangers, come very clearly into view upon a study of regimental documents. In the year Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-five, the Riel Rebellion broke out in Canada. Massacres were frequent and bloody as the Indians left their reservations and preyed on the scattered settlers of the North West Territories. "Cowboys and Indians" was not a game but a grim reality. The defense forces then in existence were inadequate, and so Captain John Stewart, former Officer Commanding the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, grouped together other ranchers, cowboys and Montanians, among them a large percentage of former North West Mounted Policemen. Captain Stewart made a special trip to Ottawa for authorization, and made application to the Minister of Militia as follows: (See next page).

OTTAWA, March 25th, 1885

TO THE HONORABLE MINISTER OF MILITIA,
Ottawa, Ont

Sir,

I have the honour to submit the following report, as requested in private interview today, with reference to the formation of a Mounted Force in the Southern District of Alberta, North West Territory. A Provisional Cavalry Force of the strength of 150 Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers and Troopers can be formed in the District named, having as its Northern boundary High River, its Eastern, Medicine Hat, and its Southern, the International Boundary Line, of the above strength, upon the following basis.

(1) Each Officer, Non-Commissioned Officer and Trooper to supply his own horse and horse appointments (Mexican), consisting of bridle, lariat and saddle and saddle blanket.

(2) The uniform of Officers to be that of an undress cavalry officer, supplied at their own expense.

The uniform of Non-Commissioned Officers and Troopers to consist during their provisional enlistment, and whilst undergoing preliminary drill, of their own serviceable Western apparel, with perhaps some additional inexpensive distinctive equipment supplied by Government.

(3) The arms to consist of one revolver, Mounted Police pattern, or any other serviceable revolver in their possession, one cartridge belt, with knife attached, M. P. pattern (a limited deficiency in arms to be supplied by Government, but the conditions of enlistment to require them furnished by the men).

(4) Blankets, 3 per man, of North West Mounted Police weight and quality.

(5) Each Officer, Non-Commissioned Officer and Trooper to be allowed 50 cents per day for rations.

CAPT J STEWART
C O R M R. 1885

Camping utensils to be furnished by Government of the description and number required on the trail.

(6) The forage per horse to be allowed at rate of 50 cents per day.

(7) The pay for horse to be at the rate of 75 cents per day.

(8) Pay of Officers to be that of the respective rank of Canadian Cavalry Officer, with extra allowance of 50 cents for rations and 50 cents for forage per day.

(9) The pay of Non-Commissioned Officers to be that of North West Mounted Police Non-Commissioned Police, viz.: Sergeant Major $1.50, Sergeant $1.00, Corporal 90 cents.

(10) The pay of a Trooper to be that of North West Mounted Police Constable, or 75 cents per day (the total cost of a Trooper, horse, horse appointments, arms, equipment, rations, forage and pay being $2.50 per man and horse per day (with the proviso aforesaid that, where arms are actually deficient, a draft will be allowed by Government)).

(11) The Government to be responsible for loss or destruction of horse appointments during provisional service, and for the loss by death or stray of horses, when established by Board of Officers to have been accidental, and not due to neglect or carelessness; valuation to be arrived at by said Board of Officers.

(12) Cavalry regulations to govern the discipline and drill, and the maintenance to be subject to the aforesaid conditions.

(13) If quartered under canvas, the prescribed number of tents to be supplied.

(14) The enlistment of Officers, non-commissioned Officers and men to be for a period of 30 or 60 days, and during which time they will be subject to Orders for Active Service for the period named, and additionally, subject to, and enlisted for, if necessary and required by Government for the further period of two months, with the proviso that in the event of Active Service during the additional enlistment the Government will furnish necessary uniforms, arms and general equipment for the "trail" with transportation.

(15) The Officer in Command to be permitted to enlist men of other than British nationality (i.e., Western men of any class) to the extent of say, forty, or one Troop, provided, he has knowledge of their capacity and faithfulness and will be responsible for their conduct and discipline.

In recruiting the aforesaid contingent, it will be necessary to draw the men for Cavalry work and available for any emergency from ranchers and their employees, a large number of whom are ex-Mounted Police of one or two terms of service in the West, together with Englishmen, Canadians, Montanians, who have been leading a Nomadic life and whose home is the Prairie.

In tendering my services to my country and Government to command a force of the nature above described and within the said territory I do so with the full knowledge of the undertaking and with no fear of successful results, from my experience in cavalry work, and of the country in which my duties will be required.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

"Captain Stewart,
"Rangers

J. STEWART.

"Authority is given to raise four (4) Troops of 'Rocky Mountain' Rangers, on basis and conditions contained in report submitted by Captain Stewart to me.

ADOLPHE P. CARON, Minister M. & D."

Authority was granted immediately in the foregoing letter, equipment was procured from the Hudson's Bay Co. in Winnipeg, and soon the Rocky Mountain Rangers were up to strength and in active service under the leadership of the following Officers: Major John Stewart, Captain Lord Boyle, Captain Edward Gilpin Brown, Captain John Herron, Lieutenant James R. Scott, Lieutenant William F. Powell, Lieutenant James Christie, Lieutenant George O. Ives, Lieutenant Charles Smith, Second Lieutenant Hon. H. Boyle and Senator George Deveber, M.D., surgeon.

After the incorporation of the new militia unit, the next entry shows a request for an increase in pay. The reply is not shown, but the record continues with a list of the Rangers' activities: patrols from Fort MacLeod and Lethbridge along the Border and Reservations, engagements with the Piegan Indians.

A contemporary newspaper article makes an interesting comparative study both in military equipment and discipline; the reporter describes the departure from McLeod:

"Headed by their youthful but intrepid commander, Captain (later Major) Stewart, the Rocky Mountain Rangers presented quite a formidable appearance as they left McLeod amid the loud huzzas of the garrison. Their tanned faces were almost hidden beneath the shade of huge Spanish sombreros, strapped on for 'grim death.' Around many of their necks were silk handkerchiefs, which, besides being an embellishment, prevented the irritation of their coarse brown duck or "Montana broadcloth" coats. Over pants of the same material were drawn a pair of chaps (leather overalls). Crossbelts pregnant with cartridges, a 'six-shooter,' sheath knife, a Winchester slung across the pommel of the saddle, and a "lariat" coiled at the tree, completed the belligerent outfit, mounted on Bronchos, good for from sixty to a hundred miles a day, they soon disappeared in the distance; a loud clanking of bits and jingling of their huge Mexican spurs now gave place to the clatter of hoofs and the rattling of transportation wagons."

After the cessation of hostilities, each man was granted 320 acres of land, or scrip in token, and the unit returned to duty on a peacetime basis as Home Guard. As stated in the letter of incorporation, they had been assigned an area with fixed boundaries on three sides, but which extended indefinitely to the West. It was thus that the eventual centre came to be in that part of the North West Territories and British Columbia. The Regiment was re-organized by authority of G. O. 67-98 of July 1, 1898, as a Rifle Regiment, and during the ensuing years the Rocky Mountain Rangers had Companies located at most of the Interior towns.

On the outbreak of the Great War of 1914-18, the Rocky Mountain Rangers were again called to active service. On the day war was declared, the unit took up strategic positions in the Interior of the Province. In the meantime a battalion was formed from the Regiment for Overseas Service under the command of Lieutenant Colonel J. R. Vicars, being the 172nd Battalion Rocky Mountain Rangers, which sailed from Halifax for England on the S.S. Mauretania, 21st October 1916.

Reinforcements were urgently needed by other British Columbia units in France, and the Rangers sent reinforcements to the following: 7th Battalion, 47th Battalion, 54th Battalion, 72nd Battalion, 102nd Battalion. These men rendered distinguished service in France and the Rocky Mountain Rangers may well be proud of a record of 4385 men recruited during the war period, of which 1200 went to the 54th Battalion.

During the period of reorganization of the Canadian Militia after the War, the Rocky Mountain Rangers, together with all other units, were re-established on a new peace-time basis. In May 1921, the headquarters and "A" Companies were stationed at Kamloops, "B" Company at Salmon Arm, "C" Company at Armstrong and "D" Company at Kelowna. In 1928 this latter Company ceased to exist and was re-established in 1937 at Revelstoke.

On August 26th 1939, the Rocky Mountain Rangers were called to Active Service for the third time. Within 72 hours of mobilization, an area of 500 square miles was taken over and all strategic points therein patrolled and guarded. When called to recruit up to full strength as a Unit of the Canadian Active Service Force, on June 7th 1940, Headquarters, "A" and "D" Companies were at Kamloops, "B" Company at Salmon Arm and "C" Company at Revelstoke. To continue their training as a Battalion, the Rocky Mountain Rangers moved on October 2nd 1940 to Westminster Camp, New Westminster, B. C., where, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel J. E. Wood, V.D., they form an integral part of the new Canadian Army.

R. M. R. CREST

The central figure in the crest of the Rocky Mountain Rangers is that of the original "Ranger"—the Mountain Sheep which is the typical animal of the region from which the Regiment takes its name. From its alertness, from the habit of posting sentries to warn the flock in time of danger, from the rarity with which it can be taken by surprise, has come the motto which underlies the crest: "Kloshe Nanitch," which, in the original Chinook Indian dialect—an essentially British Columbian language—means "keep a good look-out," literally "look well."
